MVP Community Program Manager

Passionate about technical community development and knowledge transfer I enjoy connecting exceptional technology leaders and visionary minds to Microsoft and among each other to help people get the best about today's technology to achieve more.

Being one of the first MVP Award Program Community Managers, I like to share my experience in building community programs according to the new trends driven by technical audiences in Southern Europe.

Problems installing Microsoft Teams desktop app

Mark Wahle (@Mark Wahle) in Microsoft Teams on 04-04-2018

At one time last year I had no problem installing & running the Microsoft Teams desktop app on my Windows 7 64-bit laptop. After a period of time the program would no longer run. So I tried to uninstall & reinstall but nothing works. The installer runs bu...

Why you should enter

For nearly two decades, students from around the world have participated in Microsoft's global technology competition, the Imagine Cup, to bring their unique tech solutions to life. But the Imagine Cup is more than just a competition—you can work with friends (and make new ones!), network with professionals, gain new skills, make a difference in the world around you, and have a chance to win travel, mentorship, and cash.

Most Valuable Professionals

MVPs are technology experts who passionately share their knowledge with the community

Deeply knowledgeable of Microsoft products and services, and use that knowledge to solve real world problems

Always on the "bleeding edge" and have an unstoppable urge to get their hands on new, exciting technologies

Driven by their passion, community spirit and quest for knowledge, and always willing to help others

MVPs are not: Microsoft official spokesperson, “Preferred” or “Recommended” Partners, Paid Personnel, or Full Time Employment Candidates

What Do MVPs Do?

Provide Product Feedback

Product feedback for our engineering teams

Advocate for Microsoft Products and Services

In-person speaking at conferences and events both big and small, reaching local and global audiences

Content creation including publishing books, blogs, articles, and videos

Contributing code to projects by contributing to repositories on sites like GitHub

Contribute to a Healthy Community

Helping others by contributing to forums like Stack Overflow, MSDN, TechNet or key local forums, serving as a user group leader in their community.

Any Expectations of MVPs?

Since the MVP status is awarded based on past contributions, Microsoft has no expectations of MVPs beyond the normal expectations of courtesy, professionalism, and adherence to the Microsoft MVP Award Program Code of Conduct and Microsoft Communities Rules of Conduct that we ask of all Microsoft community members.

Community Standards

If you become aware of a conduct violation on or offline, you are encouraged to report it to MVP Global Support (link). If you are being harassed, notice that someone else is being harassed, or have any other concerns, please contact a member of the Program or event staff immediately. If you don't feel comfortable going through one of these channels, you can raise an anonymous concern via the Microsoft Runs on Trust (link) website.

- If you are comfortable please also report it directly to your CPM.
- We investigate all claims and take disciplinary action as appropriate.
- To learn more please visit MVP Code of Conduct (link)

Community Standards

Be aware of others

Be friendly and patient

Be welcoming and respectful

Be open to all questions and viewpoints

Be understanding of differences

Be kind and considerate to others
